Comrade, it's very difficult to verify news sources despite the wonderful telephone and telegraph system! Mistakes will always be made.

Changing of commandants! ExeCom chairman Beloborodov informed that Avdeev's been replaced with the one we mistook for a doctor - Yurovsky, who started by taking most of our gold items (rings, bracelets etc.) away #Romanovs100

What a great mystery life is - all waiting round for the birth of a human being, all awaiting the departure of a soul. Something so grand in it all and one feels how small we mortals are and how great our heavenly Father #Romanovs100

Well, all must be placed into God's hands with trust & faith. Life's a riddle, the future's hidden behind a curtain. When I look at our big Olga, my heart fills with emotions and wondering as to what is in store for her, what her lot will be #Romanovs100

PANORAMAS

Desperate for a son and heir to the throne after the birth of four daughters, Nicholas II and Alexandra listened to the advice of a mystic and insisted on the canonization of a popular saint, Seraphim of Sarov. In 1903, they went to the town to participate in the sanctification ceremony, and also to take a secret dip in the waters St. Seraphim had bathed in. A year later, Tsarevich Alexei was born.
